

INTERNATIONAL UNDERGRADUATE STUDENT PROGRAMS U.S. ACADEMIC HOST INSTITUTION APPLICATION 2021-2022 PROGRAM OVERVIEW

DEADLINE: March 5, 2021

IREX, a global development and education organization striving for a more just, prosperous, and inclusive world where individuals reach their full potential, governments serve their people, and communities thrive, seeks accredited institutions of higher education to host undergraduate students for two programs:

- Global Undergraduate Exchange Program in Pakistan
- Thomas Jefferson Scholarship Program

Global Undergraduate Exchange Program in Pakistan

The Global Undergraduate Exchange Program in Pakistan (Global UGRAD-Pakistan) provides emerging youth leaders from diverse communities across Pakistan with the opportunity for one semester of full-time, non-degree study in the United States.

During a semester of undergraduate classes and community engagement, participants strengthen their leadership, academic, and career-preparedness skills while building relationships with Americans. Global UGRAD-Pakistan participants will complete 20 hours of community service at local organizations during their semester in the U.S. and complete an academic skills-building class. These activities will help students engage in their host communities as well as gain skills and experience they can apply in their home communities when they return to Pakistan. Global UGRAD-Pakistan is sponsored by the U.S. Department of State with funding provided by the U.S. Government and administered by IREX.

Thomas Jefferson Scholarship Program

The Thomas Jefferson Program provides opportunities for full-time undergraduate university/institute students from Tunisia to spend one academic year of nondegree study at a four-year college or university in the United States.

Scholars will perform at least 20 hours of community service in their host community during their first semester. Students will also hold unpaid, part-time internships related to their program field of study during their second semester. These activities will help students gain essential skills to lead positive change in their professional fields and communities. The Thomas Jefferson Scholarship Program is made possible by the generous support of the American people through the United States Department of State and implemented by IREX.

Both programs provide the following support to students:

- J-1 visa support;
- Round-trip travel from student's home city to host institution in the United States;
- Accident and sickness limited health care benefit plan;
- Tuition and mandatory university fees;
- Room and board (housing and meals);
- A small incidentals allowance;
- A limited allowance for books;
- A limited allowance for cultural enrichment activities; and
- Alumni networking opportunities.

Expectations of Host Institutions

The U.S. academic host institutions are critical partners for the programs. Host institutions will be selected based on:

- demonstrated ability to provide a well-rounded program experience (with strong academic and cultural components)
- ability to provide personalized care
- experience and ability to work with students from the targeted regions;
- ability to engage students in the local community
- proposed cost-share and per student cost

Host institutions will be responsible for providing each student with a) academic support; b) cultural and community support; and c) logistical support. Responsibilities are explained in more detail below:

Academic Support

To position participants for academic success, host institutions are asked to:

- Admit participants as non-degree full-time students with the ability to take classes on campus for academic credit.
- Designate an academic advisor who will guide the student's studies and interaction with faculty at the host institution.
- Offer sufficient on-campus courses in disciplines for which students apply.

- Assist students in selecting appropriate courses, taking into consideration the student's field of study and academic experience, program requirements, and the host institution's financial agreement for the program.
- Direct students to academic support services, such as peer tutors and the campus writing center.
- Work with students, the IREX advisor/mentor, and professors to monitor academic progress and to develop a plan to improve academic performance, if necessary.
- If the host institution offers English as a Second Language or Intensive English, coordinate student placement in these courses when necessary.

Cultural and Community Support

To promote cultural and community engagement, host institutions are asked to:

- Ensure students participate in on-campus orientation programs assisting them with their adjustment to campus and U.S. life. The orientation should acquaint students with the host institution, campus culture, campus resources (including health and counseling), and academic expectations. The orientation should also reinforce program policies, with guidance from IREX. IREX recommends that the orientation also include a skills-building session to help prepare students academically, such as academic research & writing, critical thinking, time management, note-taking, and studying for and taking tests.
- Engage Global UGRAD-Pakistan students in at least one academic skills-building course or training and engage Thomas Jefferson Scholarship students in an academic skills-building course during the fall term.
- Inform students of cultural activities and local events (e.g. town meetings, concerts, festivals, political rallies, etc.) they can participate in as part of the Digital Cultural Passport program:
 - To complement the academic program and ensure that students receive a well-rounded introduction to U.S. values, institutions, and people, all students will participate in the Digital Cultural Passport program. The Digital Cultural Passport program allows students to record exploration of various aspects of U.S. culture which fall under the categories of arts and music, holiday and diversity celebrations, sports and leisure, youth concerns, local pride, and community leadership in action.
- Provide guidance/assistance in locating appropriate community service activities.

- Provide guidance/assistance/support in locating appropriate internships for Thomas Jefferson Scholarship students which are in the student's field of study and provide substantive experience to advance the student's personal and professional goals. Hosts are asked to share other opportunities for professional development as they become available.
- Suggest appropriate locations for the students' country presentations (e.g. local schools, libraries, rotary clubs, retirement homes, etc.)
- Identify "friendship families" to share U.S. family life, take students on cultural outings and/or host students for holidays.
- Be available to discuss strategies for dealing with roommate issues or cultural adjustment situations with students on a one-on-one basis.

Logistical Support

Host institutions are asked to provide additional logistical supports including:

- Correspond with students prior to arrival providing information about the host institution and answering student questions.
- Arrange airport pick-up for arriving students.
- Secure temporary housing in the dormitory or with a host family before the start of classes and during breaks, as necessary.
- Coordinate with the housing office to ensure appropriate housing assignment with a U.S. roommate. The students are required to live with a U.S. roommate.
- Sign students up for a comprehensive meal plan (if applicable).
- Assist students with any dietary needs and locating requested religious services.
- Provide access to email and internet facilities.
- Work with the appropriate office on campus to enroll students in campus insurance.
- Help locate appropriate doctors in the area when students are sick and assist students in finding transportation to their office.
- Keep IREX informed of student progress and any adjustment or behavioral issues.

- Introducing participants to the institution’s policies on academic integrity and sexual respect.

Please note: Placing students with a U.S. roommate is a requirement of the programs. Institutions that cannot provide on-campus housing with U.S. peers will not be considered.

Financial Support

Due to funding limitations, most institutions selected offer cost-share contribution of at least 50 percent of costs. Cost-share can be in the form of full or partial tuition or room and board waivers, scholarships, or other contributions. While this request should not deter applicants, it should be noted that financial arrangements are determinants of eventual placement of students.

J-1 Visa Regulations

Program participants are subject to the J-1 visa two-year home-residency requirement and are required to depart the United States on the flight provided to them by IREX, immediately following the completion of their program requirement (i.e. final exams).

Prior to beginning his/her program, each student will sign a document agreeing to this two-year home residency requirement. Students are required to return home immediately upon the completion of the program. The United States government has invested a generous amount of money and time into students’ professional development with the firm expectation that they will apply their newfound knowledge and skills in their home community upon their return.

No exceptions to this rule are possible. In addition, due to the fact that the programs are non-degree programs, IREX also cannot consider requests to prolong students’ stay in the United States in order to complete an academic degree. IREX is not permitted under any circumstances to transfer the sponsorship of the student’s DS-2019 to the host institution.

Organization Descriptions

Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs, U.S. Department of State

The Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs' (ECA) mission is to increase mutual understanding between the people of the United States and the people of other countries by means of educational and cultural exchange that assist in the development of peaceful relations.

As mandated by the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act of 1961, the U.S. Department of State's Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs (ECA) works to build friendly, peaceful relations between the people of the United States and the people of other countries through academic, cultural, sports, and professional exchanges, as well as public-private partnerships.

In an effort to reflect the diversity of the United States and global society, ECA programs, funding, and other activities encourage the involvement of American and international participants from traditionally underrepresented groups, including women, racial and ethnic minorities, and people with disabilities. Artists, educators, athletes, students, youth, and rising leaders in the United States and more than 160 countries around the globe participate in academic, cultural, sports, and professional exchanges.

Bureau of Near Eastern Affairs, U.S. Department of State

The Bureau of Near Eastern Affairs leads U.S. foreign policy in the Middle East and North Africa region through carefully administered diplomacy, advocacy, and assistance that advances the interests, safety, and economic prosperity of the American people.

The U.S. Embassy in Tunisia's Public Affairs office promotes mutual understanding between the people of the United States and Tunisia through cultural programs and exchange opportunities. Each year numerous Tunisians travel to the U.S. on programs varying between three weeks to two years, giving them the opportunity to experience America firsthand. Additionally, American speakers, musicians, and artists visit Tunisia to promote American society and culture. Combined, these activities allow the U.S. Embassy to build strong relations with the people of Tunisia at all levels.

IREX (International Research & Exchanges Board)

IREX is a global development and education organization. We strive for a more just, prosperous, and inclusive world. With an annual portfolio of $90 million and 400 staff worldwide, we work with partners in more than 100 countries in four areas essential to progress: cultivating leaders, empowering youth, strengthening institutions, and increasing access to quality education and information. For more information about IREX, visit www.irex.org.

How These Organizations Work Together on These Programs

The Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs (ECA) and IREX work in partnership on the Global Undergraduate Exchange Program in Pakistan (Global UGRAD-Pakistan). The Bureau of Near Eastern Affairs (NEA) and IREX work in partnership on the Thomas Jefferson Scholarship Program. As programs of the U.S. Department of State, ECA and NEA develops, funds, and oversees each program, and IREX is a grantee that administers all aspects of the programs.

Submission Guidelines

Please read all instructions and information on the online application carefully before filling out each section of the application form. We recommend that you print a final copy of all pages of the online host application and attachments for your records and reference.

To apply to host for any of the programs please submit all application materials through the online application system found on the IREX website.

Selection of host institutions and placement of students is contingent upon the availability of U.S. Government funding and approval and receipt of J-1 visas by program participants.

Please direct all questions to IREX via email at ugradhosts@irex.org.
