

2017 MANDELA WASHINGTON FELLOWSHIP FOR YOUNG AFRICAN LEADERS APPLICATION INSTRUCTIONS

APPLICATION DEADLINE: 4:00PM GMT ON WEDNESDAY OCTOBER 26, 2016

We recommend printing these instructions and referring to them while completing the application.

Thank you for your interest in the Mandela Washington Fellowship for Young African Leaders!

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

The Mandela Washington Fellowship for Young African Leaders is the flagship program of the Young African Leaders Initiative (YALI). President Obama launched YALI in 2010 to support young African leaders as they spur growth and prosperity, strengthen democratic governance, and enhance peace and security across Africa. Please visit youngafricanleaders.state.gov for more information. The Mandela Washington Fellowship, which began in 2014, will bring up to 1000 young leaders to the United States in the summer of 2017 for academic coursework and leadership training and will create unique opportunities in Africa for Fellows to put practical new skills to use in leading their organizations, communities, and countries. The Mandela Washington Fellowship includes:

A six-week Academic and Leadership Institute: Fellows are placed at U.S. colleges and universities. Institutes will focus on skills development in one of three areas: Business and Entrepreneurship, Civic Leadership, or Public Management. It is anticipated that one Public Management Institute will focus on Energy Policy (in collaboration with Power Africa). Applicants for this Institute need not be currently working in government or in another public management role to apply to this Institute. The Public Management Energy Policy Institute is designed for those wishing to better understand how energy policy can encourage energy access, infrastructure development, and financing in sub-Saharan Africa. Institutes will take place from mid-June to late July 2017.

- A Summit in Washington, DC: At the conclusion of the academic and leadership institute, all Fellows will participate in a high-level, three-day Summit. The Summit will take place in late July or early August 2017.
- An optional six-week Professional Development Experience: As part of the Fellowship application, individuals may apply to participate in a professional development experience (PDE) at a U.S. company, civil society organization, or public sector agency in the United States. The PDE offers Fellows practical training and the opportunity to learn transferable skills, expand their professional network, and apply concepts learned at the Institutes to real-world situations. Placements will relate to Fellows' professional interests and goals but are typically not an exact match for their current position at their home organization. This experience offers Fellows new perspectives on their fields, deepens their awareness of issues present in both the United States and their home countries, and equips them with best practices that can be applied to their work upon their return home.

Professional Development Experiences will be intensive and demanding, and chosen Fellows may be placed at organizations across the United States. Fellows selected must be available to be in the United States for approximately 13 weeks total (academic institute plus placement with a U.S. organization). Up to 100 Mandela Washington Fellows will be selected for the Professional Development Experience.

- Activities in Africa: Fellows will have access to networking opportunities, ongoing professional development, seed funding, and volunteer opportunities upon their return home after the Fellowship.

The Mandela Washington Fellowship for Young African Leaders is a program of the U.S. government and is supported in its implementation by IREX.

INSTITUTE TRACKS: DEFINITIONS AND INSTRUCTIONS

You must choose one of the three tracks: Business and Entrepreneurship, Civic Leadership, and Public Management. 2017 will include a Public Management Institute focused on Energy Policy. Descriptions of the tracks are below. You will be asked to rank your track choices.

Overall, the Institutes are designed to provide Fellows with background on U.S. practices and help Fellows to expand their networks to include Americans with whom they may find opportunities to collaborate with in the future. The Fellowship is not designed to help Fellows identify funding for projects or organizations.

Fellows should be prepared to examine U.S. case studies and approaches to challenges and relate them to the African context. The Mandela Washington Fellowship does not encourage U.S. universities to teach African models to Fellows. Consequently, institute speakers may not be specialists on African subjects. As leaders, Fellows should be prepared to think about what elements of the U.S. approach or strategy might be useful in their own contexts.

While Institutes focus on specific tracks and themes, not all sessions will directly relate to each Fellow's current work. Sessions are designed to help Fellows broaden their understanding on a variety of topics to prepare them as they progress to even higher levels leadership. During the course of their Fellowship, Fellows are encouraged to build their own networks and connections by reaching out directly to Americans in their host communities. This may only be done during unstructured time. As part of the Fellowship, Fellows are required to attend all program sessions by their university hosts.

Institute Tracks:

- Business and Entrepreneurship Institutes: Business and Entrepreneurship Institutes will cater to entrepreneurs who hope to take on leadership roles in the private sector or expand their business ventures on the continent. Business and Entrepreneurship Institutes will expose participants to business and entrepreneurial approaches in the United States. Business and Entrepreneurship Institutes will also build technical and leadership capacity in areas such as strategy, operations, supply chain management, business ethics, social entrepreneurship, microfinance, organizational development and management, marketing, innovation and technology, emerging markets and risk analysis, strategic business planning, and corporate social responsibility. The Institutes will focus on developing Fellow skills in business and entrepreneurship while examining the development, history, challenges, and successes of U.S. enterprises and social enterprises. The Institute focuses on leadership development and best business practices. Fellows should not anticipate identifying funding or investment opportunities during the Institutes or Summit.
- Civic Leadership Institutes: Civic Leadership Institutes will be oriented to young Africans who are civically engaged and serving the public through non-governmental organizations, community based organizations, or volunteerism. Civic Leadership Institutes will expose participants to the meaning of civic leadership in the United States while building technical and leadership capacity in areas such as citizenship, community building, economic development, grassroots activism, political organizing and leadership, and volunteerism. Institutes on Civic Leadership will provide participants with an overview of how citizens have shaped the United States both as individuals and in groups. The Institutes will focus on U.S. case studies in topics such as education, gender equality, health, human rights, and poverty reduction. The goal is to provide Fellows with U.S. best practices and lessons learned that they can then use to develop solutions within their own contexts. In order to define the content of the Institute and enhance the academic experience, programs may focus on a specific theme or sub-themes such as organizational management, strategic planning, fundraising, community relations and outreach, advocacy, monitoring and evaluation, media, and coalition-building. Fellows should not anticipate identifying funding opportunities during the Institutes or Summit.

- Public Management Institutes: Public Management Institutes will be tailored to young Africans who work or aspire to work in all levels of government agencies, regional organizations such as the African Union, international organizations such as the United Nations, or other publicly-minded organizations or think tanks. The Institutes on Public Management will provide participants with an overview of Public Management and Leadership including economic development; workforce development; financial management in public organizations; and planning. Public Management Institutes will expose participants to U.S. public management models and best practices, while building technical and leadership capacity in areas such as transparency, procurement, public financial management, government tender processes, legislative/executive collaboration, citizen engagement and outreach, human resource management, program implementation, and policy formulation. Within the broader frame of the public policy process, Fellows will be exposed to specific public management questions on topics such as public finance, rule of law, education, public health, environment, and foreign policy.
- Public Management Institute focused on Energy Policy: It is anticipated that one Public Management Institute will focus on Energy Policy (in collaboration with Power Africa). Applicants for this Institute need not be currently working in government or in another public management role to apply to this Institute. The Public Management Energy Policy Institute is designed for those wishing to better understand how energy policy can encourage energy access, infrastructure development, and financing in sub-Saharan Africa. In addition to leadership training, the Energy Institute will focus its academic sessions on creative and pragmatic energy policies and legal practices which foster efficient markets for energy without sacrificing the environment. Fellows will hone their awareness of the global energy system and how energy policies and laws can encourage or thwart innovation and financing. The Energy Institute will focus on themes such as innovation and technology that provide scalable, secure, and environmentally sustainable energy; policymaking (topics may include government accountability to its citizens, evaluating the environmental sustainability of policies, and international legal frameworks); and financial management (topics may include using the energy sector to grow African economies, ethical stewardship of public funds, and engagement of private sector for infrastructure investment).
